

Don't know about a lot of good in them of the best in them in some ways with things, "M. M. M."
but from out doors the morning. He looks at least like he has
at least look like he has a great deal of
at least look like he
with a head ache, but at present, I worked among the grape vines very comfortably. This morning the sun is bright & warm & my coat it out on my face. It is so uncomfortable that I cannot stay out in the sun, so I begin you a letter. But I tell you at the start that it won't be very intellectual, for I never feel very bright when my face is troubling me.

I went to see Mr. Swift this morning & tell him that I could not well go to Mr. Phasant's there were very many to many difficulties standing square in the way. Mr. Swift has been about half sick for some days & wants to take a rest.
I said he did not feel much like going himself I did not know as he should try & go. He had from there, might in the night & this night in the night. The hardest part of the thing is of time of the season. The roads are nearly impassable again. It begins to look like there rain soon. Mr. K. that from they are was here yesterday & preached over. I don't feel like writing I am going down soon a while.
Well, I have been to the P. O. & seen Mr. Varan but I am no longer. Our new boarder, Hamilton is a perfect laager - looks easier & more than any board we have perhaps ever had. I have just learned that he has not been into the school room all this year, as I believe this dentine I look up. My eye is attracted by two robins flying upon their nest in the evergreen between the house & office & feeding their young.

One drops down ~~the~~ <sup>its</sup> head to them the other ~~with~~ with its food. I in an instant they are gone for more. They are no laagers, & as I was at work that day, among the goafurins. The robins were around me much of the time picking up the worms, as tame as chickens. They would get sent home for night of duties, nor will they give their friends for their laager habits A general good-for-nothingness. Wam Blanton says his river drinks, but this is making him self a punny & half non-compos. by his outing, but not in our hands for that was a condition upon paper before he began to board here.

The bill duck is uncovered & day & the staple architect is expected tomorrow morning. It will be a quite job, now if the weather is good.
Yours of Sat. has just come in. We had a slight rain on Wed. On Thurs. a heavy shower passed. So of nd. Th. says it rained with them most of the week.
Mat. is here as I write. All well & send love As ever
C. L. Carter.
